Pottery imbued with the warmth of the kiln flame

Firing a wood burning kiln, Uchikoshi san considers the fire his ally, and the warmth of the kiln flame is reflected in the warmth of his pottery. He selects his materials very carefully, but the kiln ultimately decides the fate of the work.

Recently, they moved from Kitahato to Chinzei, building a new studio and kiln. With the new kiln, Uchikoshi san hopes to make new work that wouldn't have been possible before. He has an affable, good-natured character. The kiln is his identity, and when he hands his work to a customer, there is a moment when he can see the recognition of his passion for pottery in their eyes, and this is a moment of joy for him.
