▶1977 Began studying ceramics.

Thankful for what nature provides

Mikitoshi Fujita believes we are shaped by our environment. His studio sits in a beautiful natural setting, among over 2,000 planted trees. Mikitoshi san is grateful to nature as he works, particularly because nature gives him the materials for his pottery.

Fujita san is a multi-talented craftsman, but he takes extra time with his approach to his pottery work. He feels that unless the work is of high quality, then the character of the maker may be called into question. He tries to make work that moves the user emotionally, work with a modern aesthetic that represents his own voice.
